- 11 March Director of the Holy See Press Office responds to reports that a visit to Egypt by Pope Francis was under study (Bulletin), (Vatican Radio)
- 18 March Director of the Holy See Press Office announces that Pope Francis has accepted the invitation of the “President of the Republic [of Egypt], the Bishops of the Catholic Church, His Holiness Pope Tawadros II and the Grand Imam of Al-Azhar, Head of Muslim Council of Elders, Sheikh Ahmed Mohamed el-Tayyeb.” (Bulletin) (Vatican Radio)
- 28 April Pope Francis addresses the International Peace Conference at the Al-Azhar Conference Centre in Cairo (Discourse). In his discourse, he acknowledges the invitation of the Grand Imam of Al-Azhar, Head of Muslim Council of Elders: “I thank my brother, the Grand Imam, for having planned and organized this Conference, and for kindly inviting me to take part.”
- He also references the work of the Mixed Committee for Dialogue between the Pontifical Council for Interreligious Dialogue and the Committee of Al-Azhar for Dialogue as an example of the “encounter of religions and cultures” on which “the future depends”.
- Drawing inspiration from Egypt’s place in ancient civilization, the Pontiff then explained three aspects to “assist this dialogue: the duty to respect one’s own identity and that of others, the courage to accept differences, and sincerity of intentions.” These three things “represent the best way forward together, to be builders of civility. For the only alternative to the civility of encounter is the incivility of conflict.”
- He then quoted Pope John Paul II’s address to Muslim leaders in Kaduna, Nigeria in 1982: “We live under the sun of the one merciful God... Thus, in a true sense, we can call one another brothers and sisters... since without God the life of man would be like the heavens without the sun”.
- Since Egypt is also the land of the covenant, Pope Francis made a heartfelt appeal that religious leaders “unmask the violence that masquerades as purported sanctity and is based more on the “absolutizing” of selfishness than on authentic openness to the Absolute” and to reject “every form of violence, vengeance and hatred carried out in the name of religion or in the name of God.”

- 31 January Pope Francis releases a video message to the people of the UAE in which he thanks the Crown Prince for inviting him to participate in the Interreligious meeting on “Human Fraternity”. 4 February Pope Francis addresses an Interreligious gathering taking place in the context of the Global Conference of Human Fraternity at the Founder's Memorial in Abu Dhabi, during the 8th centenary of Saint Francis of Assisi's meeting with Sultan al-Malik al Kāmil. The crux of his message is that "The point of departure is the recognition that God is at the origin of the one human family. He who is the Creator of all things and of all persons wants us to live as brothers and sisters, dwelling in the common home of creation which he has given us. Fraternity is established here at the roots of our common humanity". (Discourse) (Vatican News) (Video)

This Document will be studied in the schools and universities of many countries. But I also recommend that you read it, get to know it, because it offers many incentives for furthering the dialogue on human fraternity." (Discourse) (Vatican News)

7 February Then-Bishop Miguel Ayuso says in an interview with Vatican News that Pope Francis's historic visit to the United Arab Emirates is being widely seen as a milestone in interreligious dialogue. In addition, he calls the Document on Human Fraternity a precious roadmap for peace, and says it contains indications that must be spread throughout the world. This document, he says, has its roots in the necessity to safeguard the future of mankind and of the world and is particularly poignant in the face of "a wounded humanity". "Universal fraternity is key so that through a culture of dialogue, joint collaboration and mutual knowledge may be the pillars for building a better world". (Vatican News)

In an interview with Vatican News’s Alessandro Gisotti, then-Bishop Miguel Ayuso, President of the Pontifical Council for Interreligious Dialogue, says the formation of the committee is very important and will help educators get to the heart of the Document on Human Fraternity.

He addressed the topic of education, one of the main tasks of the Committee: “The opportunity to educate ourselves and others in a culture of encounter, fraternity, and peace means finding the will to redesign the academic and educational programs offered by Institutes and universities.”

Regarding the criticism that the Document on Human Fraternity is syncretistic, the then-Bishop said, “It is not about creating a ‘melting pot’ in which all religions are considered equal, but [recognizing] that all believers, those who seek God, and all people of good will without religious affiliation are equal in dignity.” “Pluralism in our societies – not only the religious kind – is a reality that invites us to reflect on our identity, without which authentic interreligious dialogue is impossible.” (Interview in Italian; Summary in English)
